Data Preparation

We'll begin by preparing our data. When fine-tuning with the ChatCompletion format, each training example is a simple list of messages. For example, an entry could look like:

{'role': 'system',
 'content': 'You are a helpful Air b n b Price Prediction assistant. You are to predict the price of Air bnb based on the features provided.'},

{'role': 'user',
 'content': 'Title: new york\n\nFeatures [ Accomodaton:2 ,Bedrooms: 1, Bathrooms:1 , Beds: 2, Property type: Suite , Amenities: .....] \n\n Price: '},

{'role': 'assistant',
 'content': '59'}}

During the training process the conversation will be split, with the final entry being the completion that the model will produce, and the remainder of the messages acting as the prompt. This has to be considered when building the training examples - Representative examples are provided so it doesn't perform poorly when the conversation starts to expand.

Uploading files

We can now upload the files to our Files endpoint to be used by the fine-tuned model.

In [15]: training_response = openai.File.create( file=open(training_file_name, "rb"), purpose="fine-tune"
        )
training_file_id = training_response["id"] validation_response = openai.File.create(

validation_file_id = validation_response["id"]

print("Training file ID:", training_file_id)
